UMAR Q&A

What are the criteria for admission into a UMAR group home?

UMAR does not base acceptance requirements upon a general or standard for its residents. Aside from being over 18 years of age with a primary diagnosis of mental retardation or other developmental disability, UMAR considers age compatibility within a home, personality compatibility, location as it applies to the family and specific physical requirements of the individual. To ensure that an individual's placement is beneficial to both the individual and the other group home residents, a 90-day trial period is standard for all new admissions.

How many homes does UMAR manage?

Across western North Carolina, UMAR currently operates 23 group homes, each housing 6 individuals. The first group home was in High Point. In addition, UMAR has group homes in Asheville (2), Hayesville (2), Charlotte (5), Concord (1), Cornelius (1), Statesville (1), Lexington (1), Lincolnton (2), Gastonia (2), Greensboro (2) and Winston-Salem (3). UMAR also operates 1 independent living home that serves 3 men in Cornelius.

How many apartments does UMAR manage?

UMAR operates 9 apartments in Huntersville.

How many people does UMAR support?

UMAR serves over 400 individuals through its programs and services – 150 specifically in residential services.

How big is a group home?

Group homes average approximately 3,000 sq. ft. with 7 bedrooms (one for overnight staff) and common living areas. In this home-like atmosphere, residents learn independent-living skills and enjoy a social environment that is not available in other long-term care settings.

What age are UMAR residents?

UMAR residents vary in age (from 18 to 70), gender, race, religious and ethnic backgrounds.

How are group homes staffed?

Staffing is handled around-the-clock by qualified direct support professionals. UMAR's group homes have live-in staff that work 7-days on and 7-days off. A couple of group homes require 3 shifts of awake staff, due to the needs of the residents. Apartment homes only require 5-20 hours of residential oversight per week (dependent on the needs of the individuals).

What services does UMAR offer?

UMAR services include day programs, individualized job coaching, supported employment, recreation, personal growth goals, advocacy and Innovations/CAP services (services in parents' homes or own homes). Because UMAR provides transportation services, a large portion of group home residents are active in vocal and musical groups, hobby clubs and sporting events and many are employed in the community. Group home residents gain independence by learning to cook dinner, wash their own laundry and clean their own bedrooms.

Does UMAR have a registry for its group homes?

UMAR keeps a list of individuals that have specifically requested our services and whom we are unable to accommodate at this time. Currently, that list has over 70 names. In North Carolina, over 7,000 individuals with developmental disabilities (not served or underserved) are on waiting lists for services and supports

Can UMAR provide support to my family member in our home?

Yes, UMAR can provide services to an individual that lives with a parent/guardian or in his or her own home. Funding: UMAR is a provider of CAP Services and Developmental Therapy Services. For individuals with no state or local funding sources, a private pay option is available. Services that can be provided include community inclusion, self-help skills, socialization and leisure skills, residential skills and others.

If my family member is accepted into a UMAR home, for what financial requirements will I be responsible?

Aside from the monthly state-approved board rate, UMAR does not enforce any financial requirements on its residents or their families—acceptance into a group home does not depend on a family's financial situation. To help bridge the funding gap between government entitlements and the actual cost of living in our group homes, UMAR encourages that families offer financial support to the degree they are able. Various giving options such as multi-year pledges, annual giving and/or planned giving are available.
